Tutoring Experience

My extensive experience in IB Psychology over 17 years has allowed me to work with students worldwide, helping them navigate the complexities of the curriculum and excel in exams. I started my career as a Psychology tutor in Germany, and over time, my expertise expanded into various international curricula, especially in IB and A-Level Psychology.

During my years of teaching, I've had the opportunity to mentor students in analytical writing, research, and exam preparation. Working with students from diverse backgrounds has refined my ability to address individual needs and provide unique insights into psychology topics. I've successfully supported students in achieving outstanding results and building solid foundations for their further studies.

I'm dedicated to making psychology accessible and engaging, and my background in educational psychology helps me tailor lessons to maximise student potential. I find great fulfillment in seeing students grow academically and personally, using psychology concepts in both exams and real-world applications.
